

December 12, 2006

Working experiences

Own developments:

Dream Day

One day a year, where you have time to consider and determine your goals for personal and corporate development. Lead through the day by a system of guidelines and light and sound stimulus the students develop their own targets for all parts of their everyday lives. A very energizing and motivating experience for everybody!

JobDay

To support HR managers in companies and communities I developed a workshop to find out the real persons behind an applicants mask. JobDay is used to find new members for positions, where it mostly depends on how new people can integrate themselves into existing teams or handle delicate and complicated situations.

Further topics can be seen on stc.sennah.com (only German)

